

Exertus, Inc.

qualitative methods + quantitative results

+1 866 575-2460 | www.exertusinc.com

CPR Diagnostic Analysis

As of Friday 22nd of October 2021 11:08:45 AM

Time

Current State

- Suppliers or internal teams are meeting their major/minor milestones or deadlines.
- Alignment between a supplier's reported status and employee's perception of progress.
- Completion dates are known and stable.
- Implementation dates are discussed and supported with definitive planning information.

Analysis

Initiatives with zero time issues are very rare. Congratulations. If a formal validation process is not in place, it may be useful to verify this condition truly exists.

Organization

Current State

- No confusion in review meetings regarding scope and direction.
- Infrequent change of scope meetings.
- Open items are addressed and closed in a timely manner.
- Accountability present for any slipping dates or cost overruns.

Analysis

Initiatives with zero organization issues are very rare. Congratulations. If a formal validation process is not in place, it may be useful to verify this condition truly exists.

Money

Current State

- No significant differences between vendor initial estimates and now current costs.
- Costs accruing at a burn rate matching expectations.
- No people looking for financial support to significantly change the cost of the initiative.
- No complaints about a lack of resources available to get necessary work completed.

Analysis

Initiatives with zero money issues are extremely rare. Congratulations. If a formal validation process is not in place, it may be useful to verify this condition truly exists.

Conclusion

Initiatives where no money, organization or time issues exist are extraordinary. If this condition persists, no further action is recommended.

This diagnostic is one of several tools developed by Exertus, Inc. and used in conjunction with the Confidential Project Recovery (CPR) service.

CPR is a specialized service for discreetly and confidentially bringing runaway or failing initiatives to desired conclusions. We've designed CPR to help you and your people achieve success without the overhead, underlying agendas or unwanted visibilities that accompany general-purpose consultancies.

Using proven techniques refined over the last 20 years, CPR quietly delivers rapid, focused, high-quality results for executives just like you at companies you would recognize, if we were allowed to make their names public. We save the day, you take the credit.

If you find yourself in a place where strategic or tactical goals are in danger of being missed and need to be turned around quickly, turn to CPR. And for any new initiatives, please contact Exertus for how we can help before things get out of hand. Click here to arrange for a free consult.

iCCBlog